

New Books-

It is with real pleasure that we have reviewed the Special English edition of "Transit-Hobby" (Sammler-Brief), published by our German member, Mr. Gunter-Stetza, 22 A Essen Ruhr, Henricist 71. Containing interesting illustrated articles covering steam, electric and model engineering phases of the rail hobby in Germany and elsewhere it is a distinct credit to the publishers of this 8 page paper. One article is of distinct interest to Americans—the "House of David" miniature steam line in Eden Springs, Michigan, near Benton Harbor. This organization, a religious sect, is also known for its baseball team. The line is 15 inches gauge. An article by Harold Geissenheimer on the Branford Electric museum is also of interest. In fact, we found all items of interest to us, as the publication covers the entire field of railroading in many countries.
